In 1844 Queen Victoria set up an Account whereby the NZ Government would pay taxes to the Queen for the right to occupy NZ. Full and detailed list of Panama Paper leak - Who's involved?

April 5, 2016

<http://www.sbeconomic.com/single-post/2016/04/05/Full-and-detailed-list-of-Panama-Paper-leak-Whos-involved>

Sebastian Rothstein

In the light of the largest leak in journalistic history, it can be somewhat hard to gather information because there's so much to take in. If you're not familiar with the Panama Papers leak - links here: ICIJ and Süddeutsche Zeitung

I have compiled an easy to read, linear, list with all the high profile people involved, and everything you need to know about them in regards to the leak. I do, however, not take any credit for the incredible journalism done by The International Consortium of Investigative Journalists (ICIJ).

Brace yourselves, it's a long list:

Heads of state and government

Current:

- Mauricio Macri, President of Argentina
 - While Macri was mayor of Buenos Aires, he did not disclose his position on Fleg Trading Ltd., where he was the director. The company was incorporated in the Bahamas in 1998.

- Sigmundur Davíð Gunnlaugsson, Prime Minister of Iceland (Resigned)
 - The Prime Minister and his wife, Anna Sigurlaug Pálsdóttir, held approximately $4 millions in bonds through Wintris Inc., a shell company based out of the tax haven British Virgin Islands. He didn't disclose his 50% stake in the company when he took office in 2009, and then sold his share in Wintris Inc. to his wife for $1 at the end of 2009. This is an important revelation, because PM. Sigmundur was elected as an anti-establishment figure against the banking crisis and is quite clearly as bad as they were.
- Vladimir Putin, President of Russia
 - Sergey Roldugin, who's a friend of Putin's, was listed as the owner of several offshore companies that received shadowy money in the range of tens of millions of dollars. ICIJ said "the evidence in the files suggests Roldugin is acting as a front man for a network of Putin loyalists — and perhaps for Putin himself."
- Xi Jinping, President of People's Republic of China
 - In 2009, Deng Jiagui, Xi Jinping's brother in law, became the sole proprietor of the companies Best Effect Enterprises Ltd. and Wealth Ming International Limited, both of which were based out of (you guessed it) British Virgin Islands. It is, however, unclear what the companies were used for.
- Bashar Al Assad, Syrian President
 - Rami and Hafez Makhoul, which are Assad's two cousins, has long been the target of international sanctions and are suspected to be in control of important gateways to the Syrian oil and telecom business. (More: Vice's story from 2014)
- Salman, King of Saudi Arabia
 - Salman held an "unspecific role" in a company called Safason Corporation SPF S.A. that owned British Virgin Island companies which took out $34 million in mortgages to purchase luxury homes in London. He's also the primary user of a yacht that was held by a British Virgin Island company.
- Najib Abdul Razak, Prime Minister of Malaysia
 - Mohd Nazifuddin bin Mohd Najib, son of the Prime minister, has had a wide range of businesses in sectors such as: finance, technology, energy, paints and coatings, and mass transit. Became VP of the Olympic Council of Malaysia in 2015.
- Sheikh Khalifa bin Zayed bin Sultan Al Nahyan, President of the United Arab Emirates and Emir of Abu Dhabi
 - Sheikh Khalifa, one of the world's wealthiest men, was the owner of, at the very least, 30 different companies established in the British Virgin Islands by Mossack Fonseca.
- Petro Poroshenko, President of Ukraine
 - Poroshenko's assets include auto plants, a TV channel, a chocolate business, and a shipyard. He's the sole proprietor of a holding company called Prime Asset Partners Limited, which was set up through Mossack Fonseca.
- Nawaz Sharif, Prime Minister of Pakistan

- 3 of Nawas Sharif's 4 children (Mariam, Hasan, and Hussain) are implicated in the Panama Paper leak. There has been a lot of controversy surrounding the family over their business network in industries that include: steel, sugar, paper mills, and international property holdings.

Former:

- Bidzina Ivanishvili, Prime Minister of Georgia
 - Bidzina owned a trust called Lynden Management Ltd. that was based out of the British Virgin Islands. It was established by Credit Suisse, and has come under scrutiny for the fuzzy source of its funds.
- Ayad Allawi, Prime Minister of Iraq
 - Ayad Allawi controlled a British Virgin Island company named Moonlight Estate Limited and a Panama registered company named I.M.F holdings; both controlled real-estate in England.
- Ali Abu al-Ragheb, Prime Minister of Jordan
 - Ali Abu was the director of several British Virgin Island based investment companies; he held 3 different companies in Seychelles and had family members serving as board of directors on multiple British Virgin Island companies.
- Hamad bin Khalifa Al Thani, Emir of Qatar
 - Less than a year after Hamad bin Khalifa contacted Mossack Fonseca to buy a shelf company registered in the British Virgin Islands. The company, Afrodille S.A., would hold accounts in Luxembourg banks and shares in two South African companies.
- Hamad bin Jassim bin Jaber Al Thani, Prime Minister of Qatar
 - Hamad bin Jassim held investment companies in Panama and two companies, which he co-owned with the then-Qatar Emir Hamad bin Khalifa. He've also held several other companies in the Bahamas and British Virgin Islands - also one through which he managed a $300 million yacht.
- Ahmed al-Mirghani, President of Sudan
 - Al-Mirghani owned Orange Star Corporations, which was a company based out of the British Virgin Islands. After being created in 1995, Orange Star Corporation made a long lease purchase of an apartment in London for more than $600,000. When al-Mirghani died, he held assets through the company worth $2.72 million dollars, according to ICIJ.
- Pavlo Lazarenko, Prime Minister of Ukraine
 - Lazarenko was convicted in June 2000 for money laundering in Switzerland and then in the United States in 2004 and then sentenced to 9 years in prison; the sentence was then reduced to 97 months (8 years and 1 month). $250 million from his offshore accounts are still being tracked down by U.S. authorities.

Original Ututaonga Te Tii Land Blocks with only One House on it in the whole Paihia Bay of Islands I hold this Land Title of the Admiralty Court Martial Law of King William IV used in the Philippines where our "Queen Victoria Trust" Gold is.

18 Te Tii Block
Residue 15 Feb 1928
Appn for investigation of title
Sec. 117-1, 162-1, and 117-11

Judgment

The Native Land Court is asked by the Natives on these proceedings to hold that the whole of the Te Tii Block shown on sketch-plan 12543 (with the exception of an area of 81½ acres at Te Tii Point already clothed with title) is Native Customary or Papatupu land, with respect to which the Court is authorised to make an Order on Investigation of Title. The Court is further asked to decide which Natives are entitled to inclusion as owners, and in what relative shares.

The application is opposed by the Crown as to two areas of 540 acres and 20 acres respectively, which are claimed to be "surplus lands" and so to belong to the Crown.

Sketch-plan 12543 has been approved by the Chief Surveyor and accepted by the Court as a sufficient sketch-plan for the purpose of this investigation. It divides up the total area as follows:-

Area investigated (1890 - 1891)	- 81½ acres
Area admitted by Crown to be Native Customary land	= 50½ acres
Area taken for road	- 20 acres
Area claimed by Crown	= 540 acres
Total	692 acres

This total corresponds sufficiently with the original estimate of 702 acres.

The Crown admits that an area of 50½ acres to the south-east of the 81½ acre piece shown on sketch-plan 12543 is Native Customary Land, but the reason for such admission was not made clear to the Court by evidence at the hearing.

The Court, after examining the old records and particularly the minutes in Northern Minute Books 10 and 11, and after perusing the evidence given in the present proceedings, has no hesitation in holding that the areas (540 acres and 20 acres) claimed by the Crown to be "Surplus Lands" are not "Surplus Lands" but comprise portions of an area originally estimated to contain 702 acres which was formally handed back to the Natives by Archdeacon Henry Williams, the accredited representative of the Church Missionary Society, on the 7th June 1839, prior to the signing of the Treaty of Waitangi in 1840.

No evidence has been given on behalf of the Crown to show that the land was handed back to the Natives after the Treaty of Waitangi. Indeed, in order to substantiate the Crown claim that the area in dispute is Crown land, it would be necessary for the Crown to show that Archdeacon Henry Williams committed a deliberate fraud upon the Crown by ante-dating the document to the 7th June 1839. The Crown representative has not attempted to allege or to prove any fraud, nor does the Court think that any grounds could be found for imputing fraud.

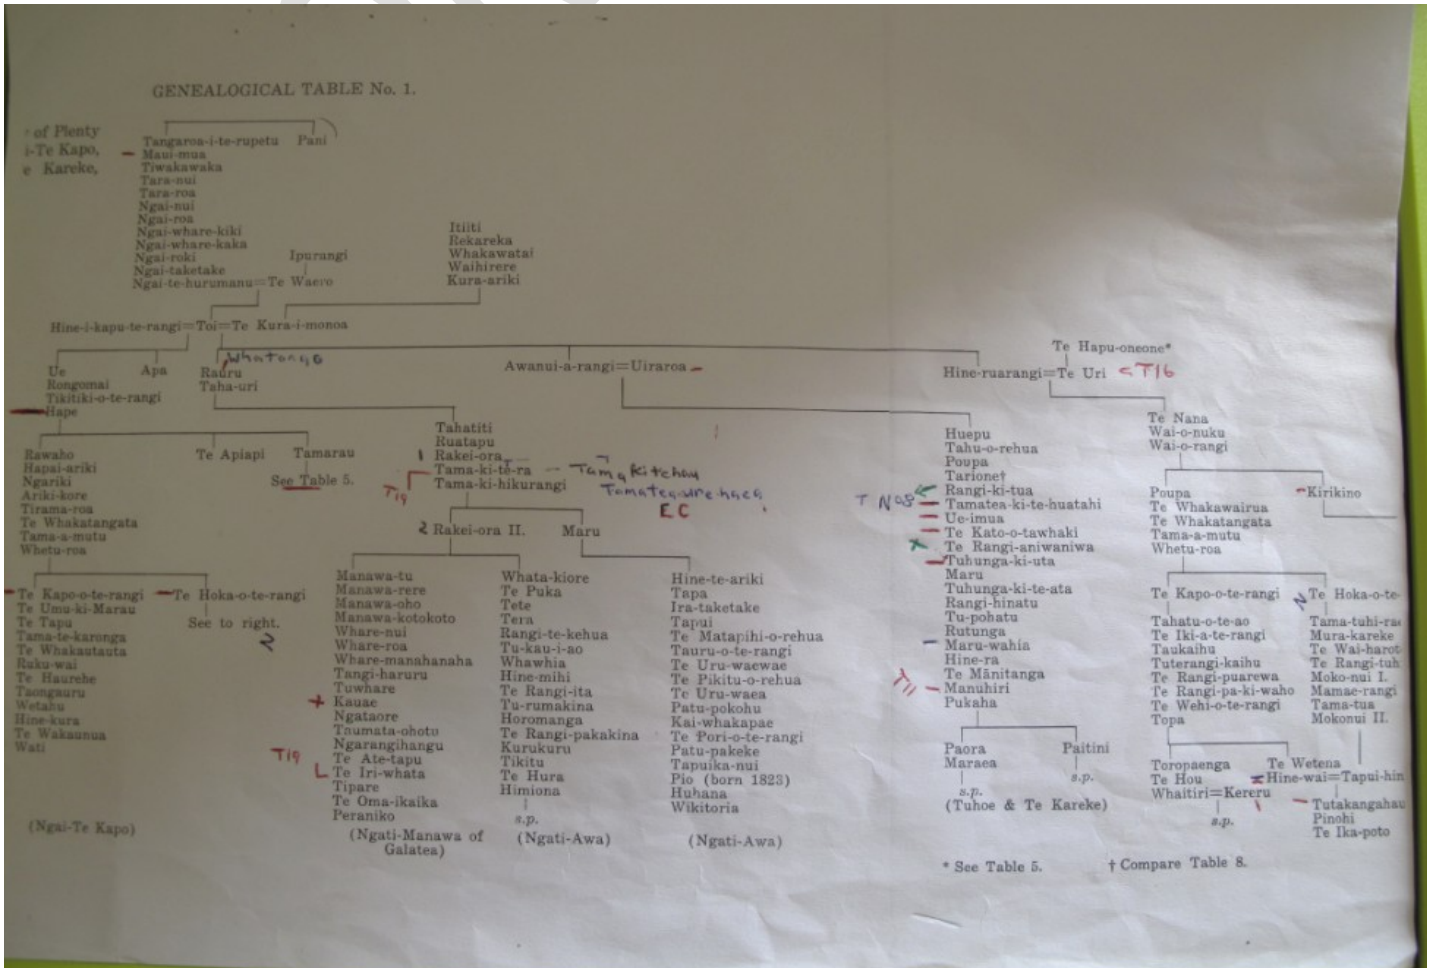

Northern Minute Book 10 folio 162 (under date 15-9-1890) states that the document of transfer dated 7th June 1839 from Henry Williams to Te Koroa and the Natives was a bona fide transfer.

THE WAKA

ly known as Kakaho-roa). The captain is said to have been Tiwakawaka, and those remembered in the crew were Tiwakawaka's wife Haumia-nui, his brothers Toikairakau and Hirawe, and crew members Maku, Areiawa, Turuturu, Tokomauku and Himoki, each of whom had rocks named after them at the entrance of Whakatane River. It is stated that the land was uninhabited when the waka reached Aotearoa, and that the migrants built a pa named Kapu-te-rangi. (In the entry for Paepae-ki-Rarotonga it is claimed Toi-te-tuatahi also built a pa at Whakatane, called Kapu-te-rangi, during his search for Whatonga.) There is considerable debate in Transactions of the New Zealand Institute, volume 37, page 122, as to the correctness of the claim that Toikairakau and Maku were members of the Aratauwahaiti crew, with the genealogical evidence quoted suggesting it to be false.

ARATAWHAO

This waka was built by Hoaki and Taukata to enable their return to Hawaiki to acquire kumara. (The story of their voyage to Aotearoa in search of their sister Kanioro and her husband Pou-ranga-hua, has been recorded in the tradition of the Hinaki-pakau-o-te-rupe.) After introducing kumara to the inhabitants of the Kapu-te-rangi (or Tapu-te-rangi) pa, near Whakatane, the brothers were induced to build a voyaging waka in which to return to their homeland and procure a selection of the vegetable tubers for cultivation. It was agreed that a new waka would be built and sailed to Hawaiki where kumara grew in great abundance.

A large totara log was selected, and Hoaki and Taukata commenced construction. The log had been found washed up on a beach near the mouth of the Whakatane River, and from this tawhaowhao (driftwood) the waka was named. The adzes used to form the mighty waka were named Te Manokohuka, Te Waiheke and Te Warawaratai-o-Tane. As soon as the weather permitted, the waka was made ready for the voyage to Hawaiki and a crew selected. Those remembered of the crew are:

KURAHAUPO

Name variations: Kuraauupo, Kura-pau-popo, Kura-te-po, Kura-wau-po, Kurawhapo, Kuruatepo, Kuruhaupo

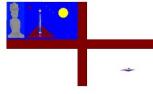

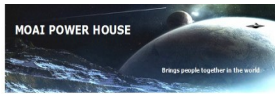

Two waka with the name Kurahaupo feature in Maori traditions. In the first of the traditions, Whatonga obtained the waka Te Hawaii from Turangi and, after renaming it Kurahaupo, voyaged to Aotearoa in search of his grandfather, Toi. According to a version of the voyage recorded by Best, the Kurahaupo was sailed first from Hawaiki to Rarotonga, where Whatonga heard that Toi had sailed on to Aotearoa. Following the ara-moana (sea path or route) of Toi's waka, Te Paepae-ki-Rarotonga, Whatonga eventually reached the shores of Aotearoa, making his first landfall at Muriwhenua. The waka was then sailed down the west coast and landed at Tonga-porutu, in northern Taranaki. Whatonga was able to learn from the local inhabitants that Toi was living in the Bay of Plenty. Despite a number of his crew opting to stay and live among their hosts (Maungaroa, Te Hatauirā, Korehewa, Moko, Pou, Te Auaha and others), Whatonga managed to voyage to the East Coast via North Cape.

During this section of the voyage, Whatonga and the remaining crew stopped off at a spot in Northland to collect food and water. Here one of the group, Otuako, died (and the locality was subsequently named after him). Further south, the Kurahaupo put in at Moharuru (Maketu), where the chief Matakana entertained Whatonga and his men. It was while the crew of the Kurahaupo were enjoying Matakana's hospitality that Whatonga finally learnt the whereabouts of his grandfather. The waka was sailed to Whakatane, where Whatonga was re-united with Toi at the pa Kaputerangi. After staying at Toi's pa for some time, Whatonga decided to find lands for himself, and relaunched the Kurahaupo. He sailed to Turanganui where Popoto, Mahutonga and (in some versions Tu-ranga) settled. After staying for a while, Whatonga travelled on to Mahia.

The following is a list, collected from several sources, of those said to have been on the Kurahaupo:

Toi Kainakay son		Tamateanarehara
Whatonga	Mahutonga	(Tama-ahua)
Taramanga	Popoto	Te Hatauirā
Tokaroa	Korehewa	Moko
Pou	Te Auaha	Te Awe

1.8 Barney Dewes came into the Lottin Point area in 1949 from Waipiro. He has noted that when he first went to Lottin Point he did not know about tapu wairua: "As time went on and I found my first skull, I learnt a lot of things." Barney Dewes has experienced personal tragedy in relation to wahi tapu and shown they have affected family members. Eventually, to enable him to use his land, Barney Dewes brought in a tohunga to pinpoint all the sacred places.

1.9 Claimants have noted that others have not been so careful to observe tikanga and the right practice. It is reported that during the building of the Lottin Point Motel, the pakeha owners concreted over a burial site there and built the motel on top.

1.10 The recording of archaeological sites in such density in the Lottin Point and Matakaoa district has led to unexpected results for local Maori land owners. The recorded sites feature as part of the Gisborne District Council's Heritage Protection Plan. Claimants report that the Council has adopted archaeological site recording without consultation with local people. This has led to some odd results as is illustrated by Matekino Smith, the owner-occupier of Wharekahika A8 who, when seeking to have a house established on her land, was informed by the Council that she could not do so as there was a significant site on her land and Council practice was to not allow building within 50 metres of recorded sites. The recorded site was actually a kumara pit not regarded by local people as wahi tapu. Matekino was required to go to her kaumatua with a request that he inform the Council of this fact. Although the matter was resolved, and the house site was confirmed, for Matekino, this experience was wrong, where an outside agency such as the Council assumed the role of protecting cultural sites in a way that called tangata whenua landowners - the kaitiaki of these sites - into account.
